

The Reason I want to go to Australia.

If I got to go to any country in the world, it would have to be Australia. The people are really cool and good looking. They have the world's largest semi trucks. It is always warm there, even at night.

First of all, The people are really cool and they are good looking. The girls are usually walking around in swim suits. The people are always happy there. They have really cool houses.

Second of all, They have the world's largest semi trucks. It has the biggest motor and the biggest rateater. They pull up to six semi trailers at a time. They are dobel or tripel the size of the U.S.'s semi truck's.

Last but not least, It's always warm all day, even at night. You can wear shorts all year around. Most people leave their wendows open at night. You don't have to wear a jacket anytime.

G 12b

In conclusion, Why I would want to go to Australia. The people are really cool and good looking. They have the world's largest semi trucks. It is always warm all day, even at night. That is why I think Australia would be the place I would want to go the most.

Score Point: 4

This response reflects proficiency in expository writing skills. The writer selects Australia as a place to visit and cites three key reasons to support this choice (the people are really cool, they have the world's largest semi trucks, and it's always warm there). The response is organized. Adequate details are provided to illustrate these reasons, and adequate language facility is displayed. Although some writing errors are present, they do not interfere with meaning.

DO NOT WRITE IN THIS AREA